

NOTIFICATION OF RESEARCH WITH WASHINGTON DEPARTMENT OF FISH AND WILDLIFE YOUTH FISHING PROGRAM PARTICIPANTS

Responsive Management, a Virginia-based research firm, is working with the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife to survey parents or guardians of the participants of the Youth Fishing Program. For those Participants willing to assist in the study, researchers from Responsive Management will be contacting the participants before program events to conduct a short telephone survey; a similar survey will be administered to the same participants following their completion of the program (i.e., an event or series of events). The research will identify the most effective program elements and provide insight into the refinement of existing programs, as well as ways to improve future programs.

Confidentiality Guarantee

Responsive Management is committed to maintaining the confidentiality and anonymity of its survey respondents, and guarantees their personal information will not be sold or shared with any outside party. Contact identification is only used for statistical purposes and is available in a form only identifiable to Responsive Management. Responsive Management guarantees that personnel will not access data or information unrelated to project requirements or duties, will not disclose to any other person, or allow any other person access to any information that is proprietary or confidential.

About Responsive Management

Responsive Management has been conducting textbook-quality research for natural resource and outdoor recreation organizations for more than 20 years. . For more information, please visit Responsive Management's website, www.responsivemanagement.com, which provides extensive information about its research, methodologies, and qualifications.